The Training of Professionals Ensuring the Grasp of the Most Recent Trends:

Improve professional knowledge and implement technology-based creative thinking

In order to improve the professional functions of administrative enforcement officers, the Administrative Enforcement Agency of the Ministry of Justice (AEA) held the "2025 Administrative Enforcement Officer On-the-Job Education and Training Program" on April 16, 2025, at the Bo-Ai Hall of the Taiwan High Prosecutors Office. Director-General Miao, Jhuo-Ran presided over the event and invited the chief administrative enforcement officers and administrative enforcement officers of each branch to participate in the event in the hope of enhancing professional knowledge, promoting teamwork, and introducing technological and innovative thinking to improve the quality of handling cases and enforcement efficiency.

Minister Cheng, Ming-Chien of the Ministry of Justice, and Director Liu, Ying-Hsiu of the Department of Legal Affairs, were invited to provide instructions for the education and training program. Minister Cheng was invited to present the 2024 "Best of Enforcement" and "Excellent Enforcement Performance" medals to the winning branches and administrative enforcement officers. In his speech, Minister Cheng praised AEA for its outstanding performance and mentioned it as a dynamic and creative team. In order to implement the Ministry of Justice's goal of handling cases with technology, the progress of digital transformation has never stopped. Many technological approaches have been adopted in the enforcement procedures, such as virtual account payment, electronic documents, and judicial auction technology, with evident results. Minister Cheng also encouraged the AEA to make good use of statutory enforcement measures against malicious obligors to make them have nowhere to hide and to make every effort to achieve fairness and justice.

The course provided in the morning invited the Legal System Department's Senior Specialist, Chiu, Li-Fen, to teach the practical law enforcement. The law is a tool to implement enforcement policy. In addition to complying with the principle of procedural justice, the wording and terminology used in the law also affect the implementation of the practice. Therefore, the course is arranged to strengthen the legal enforcement capability of administrative enforcement officers so as to improve their professionalism.

The course provided in the afternoon began with the topic of sharing the case of obligors with large arrears and interactive communication. It focused on the practical handling process of specific cases, passing on the experience through sharing, and thinking outside the box in terms of education and training. Lectures were arranged for interactive communication with students to explore new enforcement strategies and inspire team potential.

Another course scheduled in the afternoon was the application of AI technology in administrative enforcement to continue to examine the categorized affairs in the enforcement works with a pragmatic attitude, gradually introduce AI digital transformation, streamline the enforcement process to improve efficiency, and apply AI to daily work to reduce the workload of staff.

At the end of the course, Director-General Miao encouraged the attending staff that professional training in enforcement has always been a link to which AEA attaches great importance. The course combines interactive discussions on theory and practice, based on solid practical legal work, and mutual learning of actual case handling skills, we can expect to enhance the professionalism and skills of staff to respond to new trends in administrative enforcement. Whether it is to implement the Executive Yuan's "Five Against and Seven Safety" policy, or to vigorously enforce cases against large arrears, or to actively handle cases entrusted by the prosecutors' offices for auctions, which are all key tasks of AEA to implement the core goals of justice. Further, in order to alleviate the heavy workload of enforcement staff due to the huge caseload, it is expected that AI technology will be adopted to optimize the case handling process in the future to make the enforcement procedure more streamlined and efficient. It is hoped that after participating in the education and training program, the staff will be inspired when facing difficulties at work, and innovate and grow in a new era of AI.
